

Semester One Course Offerings

The context course introduces students to the issues and problems affecting women's positions in society. This course must be taken in the fall semester of the Scholar's first year in the program because students are exposed to some of the basic concepts of feminist theory which, along with the Women and Leadership Seminar, will serve as a foundation for work done throughout the program. The context course must be taken in addition to the prerequisite course. All course descriptions are available on the website of the Department of Women's and Gender Studies: <http://womens-studies.rutgers.edu>. You may select from over 100 courses listed below:
