The Leadership Scholars Certificate Program is a two-year selective, interdisciplinary certificate program that prepares Rutgers undergraduate women to be informed, innovative, and socially responsible leaders.

Leadership Scholars design and implement social action projects to expand their understanding of issues and problems and to develop leadership skills.

This project gives Scholars the opportunity to apply the theoretical knowledge they have gained about leadership, advocacy, and social change with the practical and experiential knowledge they have developed about a particular policy issue or problem through the field site placement. It also further develops leadership skills by giving undergraduates the opportunity to practice leadership through action.

The goal of “Meta Memory” is to spread more information about how social media is a pervasive force, using my own family’s relationship to Meta Inc. apps as a case study for how invasive and omnipresent social media is. To demonstrate Big Tech corporations like Facebook, Twitter, Google, Microsoft, etc. collect, buy, sell, and predict human behavior as part of an exploitative project under surveillance capitalism.

- We tell ourselves stories in order to live.

internet had a huge role in shaping my adolescence

It makes me feel weird that my family members take photos of me all the time and put it on Facebook.

“As a medium coevolves with its quotidian users’ tactics, it contributes to shaping people’s every day life, while at the same time this mediated sociality becomes part of society’s institutional fabric. Media histories and archaologies provide ample evidence of this complex coevolution…” (Dijck)

Think dial-up internet. Weblogs, list-servers, email-services helped form online communities

Web 2.0

Shifted from offering channels of networked communication to becoming two-way vehicles of sociality (Dijck)

Conclusion

Social media platforms are dangerous and need to be carefully thought about.
Frances Haugen exposes Facebook: Effects of surveillance capitalism on social media users

“Besides entirely glossing over the growing field of surveillance studies, the missing crux from most analyses is that we are all experiencing this unbelievable breach of trust and "privacy" together. All of us are continually using these apps in our daily lives all the time, and our reliance on these platforms and businesses is only growing.”

On being catcalled: Lessons learned in blue velvet boots

“But all I can say is that the dry brown leaves are nothing more than non-consenting victims of some pre-ordained scheme. Maybe time is readjusting my astigmatism. The once-blurry, tantalizing lights of Easton Avenue, if I squinted hard enough, would remind me of the ones I saw across the Bosphorus, or maybe in some memory of a place that perhaps never even existed.”

Beware of ‘Meta’: Mark Zuckerberg’s vision for social media is concerning

“The metaverse isn’t going to go away — there are not any remotely decent laws to protect us from corporations who steal our data currently, and relying on the good faith of the corporations that got us to this point is wickedly funny (the writer of this has just barked with laughter at the thought).”

All I know how to do is pick up a pen or jab tired fingers at a keyboard. And despair, I am very good at the act of despairing. Thankfully the IWL has given me the space to do this. Writing is the way I can understand the world around me. I am entirely existential and terrified all the time. I can only hope that these hushed dark-corner conversations will tug at the corners of the listener’s mind. That the bemused party-goer is understanding my feverish plea, disguised as tongue-in-cheek sophistication.
